

- The left images are the raw images fed into our trained model
- The right images are the corresponding results to the raw images.
- Red, green, and blue pixels indicate true positive, false negative, and false positive, respectively

